

ADRIC Announces National McGowan Award Winner: Scott Siemens

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

November 2, 2018

The ADR Institute of Canada (ADRIC) announces that Scott Siemens has been chosen as this year's recipient of the National Lionel J. McGowan Award. This Award recognizes those who have made an outstanding contribution to the development and success of ADRIC on a national level, and have contributed significantly to the promotion and development of alternative dispute resolution across Canada.

Janet McKay, Executive Director of ADRIC, commented: "Scott Siemens has worked tirelessly to strengthen both ADRIC and the federation of regional ADR affiliates over many years. He is a leader, a consensus-finder, and a bridge-builder within and outside the ADRIC family."

Scott has served as President of ADR Saskatchewan (ADRSK) for more than five years, and served concurrently as ADRIC President for three years. He now serves as ADRIC's Past President. Scott's passionate and considerate leadership has done much to advance ADR from coast to coast. ADRSK joins ADRIC in acknowledging Scott's significant contributions to ADR in Saskatchewan and across Canada.

ADRIC will formally present this award to Scott Siemens during the ADRIC 2018 conference in Montreal, on November 22, 2018 at 1:00 p.m. ET.
