

How A Person's Mind Style Influences their Problem Solving Approach & Perspective

Professional Development Webinar – Wednesday October 14, 2020 @3:30pm (Atlantic)

ADR Atlantic Institute offers this professional development webinar to ADR practitioners, Human Resources Professionals, Managers, Supervisors, and Union Representatives.

OVERVIEW OF THE TRAINING

A person's thinking style is a reflection of how that person processes information. Understanding the impact this has on that person's thought process can help us communicate with them more effectively and assist them to understand how their style supports or hinders their communication with others. When a person understands their mindstyle, it significantly improves internal communications and customer/client/partner relations.

The goal of this webinar will be to identify the four prevalent mind styles with the following objectives:

- ✓ To understand the difference between personality style and mindstyle
- ✓ To recognize strengths associated with each thinking style and associated behaviour patterns
- ✓ To identify impediments to communication and performance associated with each style
- ✓ To identify problem-solving techniques that work best with each style
